

Congressional Services Caucus

The bipartisan Congressional Services Caucus focuses on the crucial contribution of services to our economy, to employment, to trade and investment, and to U.S. competitiveness in the global economy.

The services industry is the backbone of the U.S. economy, contributing 80% of GDP, or $8.2 trillion and employing 93 million Americans. Service sector jobs account for the largest share of employment in every Congressional district. On average, these jobs pay $50,000. Many pay significantly more, particularly those in professional and management services, wholesale trade, transportation and warehousing, finance and insurance, and information services.

The U.S. is the world's largest and most competitive services exporter, enjoying a $71 billion services trade surplus last year. The Congressional Services Caucus supports policies that remove foreign trade barriers and further enhance U.S. competitiveness in services exports.

The Caucus will provide a forum for honest, open, and frank discussion with the Administration, business and political leaders, and other experts on issues affecting the health of the U.S. services economy. It will also play a critical role in ensuring that our services exporters get the attention they need to expand trade opportunities.
